

Money and relationships

Good Shepherd
New Zealand

Managing money together is not always easy and it can be a struggle for many couples.

Every relationship is unique and there is no right or wrong. It's about finding what works for you both.

Healthy financial relationships checklist

Tick below

My partner and I discuss money matters	<input type="checkbox"/>
I am involved in decisions about my own and our family money	<input type="checkbox"/>
I'm comfortable to talk to my partner about money and resources	<input type="checkbox"/>
I have access to my own and our joint money and resources	<input type="checkbox"/>
I can change my mind about our finances and my opinion matters	<input type="checkbox"/>
We don't always agree about finances and that's okay	<input type="checkbox"/>

If you don't have many boxes ticked and you're concerned about the money side of your relationship you can give us a call to speak to our team.

0800 466 370

option 4

Our team have experience in financial capability, advocacy and working with people who have experienced the financial and economic challenges of family harm.

Visit our website to find out more:

www.goodshepherd.org.nz

Good Shepherd New Zealand

Having conversations about money is an important part of a healthy relationship.

Becoming comfortable about money is a journey, and every relationship is different – there is no one size fits all solution.

“We would argue a lot about money – it was stressful! We saw things so differently, but we could agree on some things, so we started with them.”

Healthy Financial Relationships Toolkit

Check out our free toolkit for tools to have healthy conversations about money with your partner.

Scan the code below using your phone camera

